ISLAMABAD: Economic experts and business leaders on Friday lauded the PM Imran Khan's move to develop the construction sector but cautioned that focus on only one sector will not revive economic activities. They said all the important sectors deserve attention but the government lacks economic experts who can take timely and correct decisions based on ground realities.

Speaking at a seminar organized by FPCCI Central Standing Committee on Insurance, former federal secretary finance Dr. Waqar Masood Khan, former provincial minister, and convenor FPCCI Mian Zahid Hussain, Convenor of the FPCCI committee Dr. Murtaza Mughal, Chartered Accountant Tariq Hussain and others said that the economy is without direction which is hitting almost every sector.

They said that the government has disappointed masses while instability, inflation, and anxiety is increasing in the masses. The government seems more interested in bashing the former rulers and less inclined to provide relief to the masses, they added. The participants said that mafia has taken economy and masses as a hostage, the government promise to reduce prices but there is nothing on the ground and nothing has been done to deter the profiteers. The growth rate during 2017-18 was 5.8 percent but the consumption of petrol was less than what was consumed during the last month amid negative growth rate but the issue in which billions were plundered was hushed up. Similarly, the consumption of cement has also raised many eyebrows but to no avail which indicate collusion in mafia and authorities. The speakers said that the wheat crisis has surfaced again and it is engulfing the whole country for which the mafia as well as the inefficiency and mismanagement of the rulers are to be blamed.

Coronavirus has not damaged Pakistan as it did in the developed countries which is a blessing otherwise the situation would have been different, they said, adding that the threat of another wave of locust seems not enough to unite federal and provincial governments for a coordinated response.

Dr. Murtaza Mughal who chaired the seminar said that coronavirus has brought to limelight the need for health insurance which should be made mandatory by the government. He said that almost eight percent of the vehicles in Pakistan are not insured therefore vehicle insurance should also be mandatory which will benefit masses, and stabilize the insurance industry.

Other participants included Makhdoom Taseer, Qazi Asif Sayeed, Muhammad Arif, Sadruddin, and Mr. Ishtiaq.

Govt urged to focus on all sectors equivalently to revive economic activities

KARACHI: Economic experts and business leaders Sunday appreciated the Prime Minister Imran Khan's decision to develop the construction sector but cautioned that focus on only one sector will not revive economic activities as intended.

They said all the important sectors deserve attention but the government lacks economic experts who can take timely and correct decisions based on ground realities.

Speaking at a seminar organized by FPCCI Central Standing Committee on Insurance, former federal secretary finance Dr. Waqar Masood Khan, Convenor of the FPCCI committee Dr. Murtaza

Mughal, and others said that the economy needs proper direction.

They said that the government has disappointed masses while instability, inflation, and anxiety is increasing in the masses while some good steps have also been taken to boost the economy.

The growth rate during 2017-18 was 5.8 percent but the consumption of petrol was less than what was consumed during the last month amid negative growth rate but the issue in which billions were plundered was hushed up.

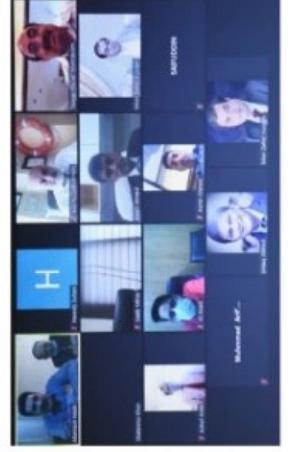

The speakers said that the wheat crisis has surfaced again and it is engulfing the whole country for which the mafia as well as the inefficiency and mismanagement of the authorities is to be blamed.

Coronavirus has not damaged Pakistan as it did in the developed countries which is a blessing otherwise the situation would have been different, they said, adding that the threat of another wave of locust is on the cards requiring coordinated action.

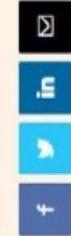

Dr. Murtaza Mughal who chaired the seminar said that coronavirus has brought to limelight the need for health insurance which should be made mandatory by the government.

KARACHI: Business community and economic experts on Sunday appreciated Prime Minister Imran Khan's decision to develop the construction sector but warned that focus on only one sector might not revive economic activities as intended.

Speaking at a seminar organised by the Federation of Pakistan Chambers of Commerce (FPCCI) Central Standing Committee on Insurance, former federal secretary finance Dr Waqar Masood Khan, FPCCI Committee Convenor Dr Murtaza Mughal and others said that the economy needs proper direction.

They said that the government needs to focus on all important sectors however, it lacks experts who can take timely and correct decisions based on ground realities.

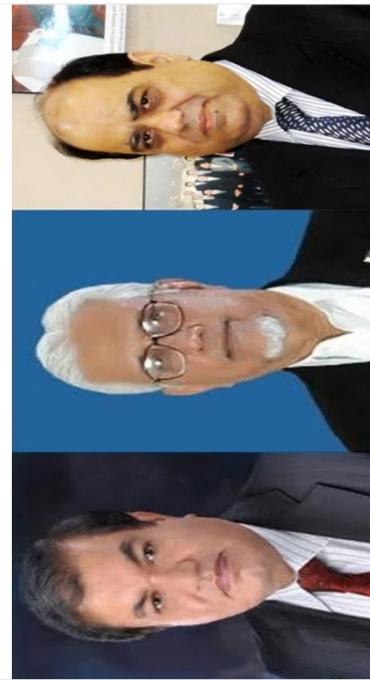

The speakers said that the wheat crisis has surfaced again for which the inefficiency and mismanagement of the authorities is to be blamed.

They said that the Covid-19 pandemic has not damaged Pakistan to the extent it affected the economies of other countries.

They further added that the threat of another wave of locust is on the cards which requires coordinated action from the government and relevant authorities.

Dr Murtaza Mughal who chaired the seminar said that the coronavirus has brought to limelight the need for health insurance which should be made mandatory by the government.
